

I want to help every child to reach their potential and value themselves as individuals and also to help others realise and respect that everyone has something to contribute - Different is OK, we are all individuals.

I want to help children achieve. I enjoy working with pupils individually and collectively as well as enjoying the challenge of motivating pupils to learn. Every day is varied and different.

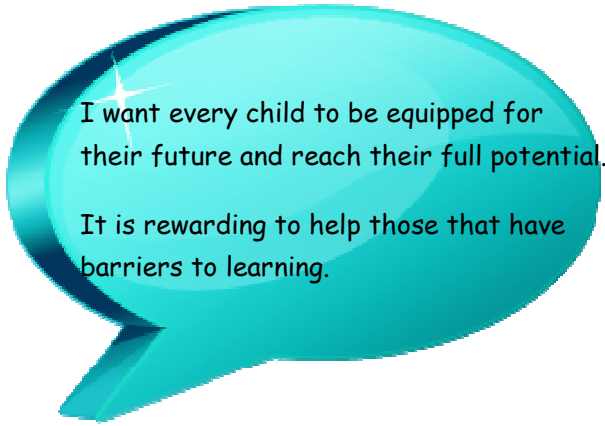

I love the fact that I can make a difference and everyday is different. I enjoy the sense of achievement I get when I can see that a child has 'clicked'.

I became a teacher because I wanted to ensure that I gave children the best start they could have in life. By doing this they would have the potential to do anything.

I am a teacher because I love being in class with the children.

I want every child to be equipped for their future and reach their full potential. It is rewarding to help those that have barriers to learning.
